

Monsoon Escapade # 03

Nighoj

Streak Throated Swallows

Potholes at Nighoj

Common Chameleon

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

Streak Throated Swallow, (Hirundo Fluvicola) is a common bird in Central India. Found in cultivations and near water bodies, this bird builds it's "house" with mud and sand grains.

Usually, on the undersides of overhangs for protection, the birds show amazing accuracy in approaching the small round openings of their houses!!

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

Although, the river Malganga at Nighoj was not full of water, and the rapids were not formed, the area around and on way was beautiful. With insects and chameleons coming out, colourful dragon flies and wild grass and tiny flowers, it was a photographer's delight !

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

© Shridhar Deshpande 2009

